» Q&A on 72-hour Transit Visa Exemption Policy

Q: What requirements foreign nationals have to meet to apply for the 72-hour transit visa exemption at Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport?

- A:
- (1) Citizens from the 45 countries under the 72-hour Transit Visa Exemption Program (The origins and destinations of travelers are not limited to such 45 countries);
 - (2) Foreign nationals with valid international traveling documents and air ticket for a connecting flight with confirmed date of flight and seat for a third country (region) leaving China at Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport within 72 hours;
 - (3) The scope during the visa exemption is limited to the administrative precincts of Guangdong Province.

Q: What 45 countries are included?

- A:
- (1) 24 Schengen countries in Europe: Austria, Belgium, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Netherland, Poland, Portugal, Slovak, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.
 - (2) 7 other European countries: Russia, Great Britain, Ireland, Cyprus, Bulgaria, Romania and Ukraine.
 - (3) 6 American countries: The United States, Canada, Brazil, Mexico, Argentina and Chile.
 - (4) 2 Oceanian countries: Australia and New Zealand.
 - (5) 6 Asian countries: Republic of Korea, Japan, Singapore, Brunei, United Arab Emirates, and Qatar.

Q: Is the 72-hour limit in the "72-hour Transit Visa Exemption" calculated by starting with the entry time?

- A: No. The 72-hour limit is calculated by starting with zero hour next day of the traveler' s entry. For example, if a traveler enters China at Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport on August 1, 2013, the visa exemption limit for entry is calculated by starting with 00:00 on August 2, 2013. The traveler can leave China before 23:59 on August 4, 2013.

1 Visa Exemption Policy

Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport has been approved by the State Council to carry out the 72-hour transit visa exemption policy. Foreign nationals who hold confirmed onward tickets and visas for a third country when transiting through Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport are permitted to stay in Guangdong without a Chinese visa for a maximum of 72 hours. You can enjoy an easy trip in Guangzhou within 72 hours.

↑ B101-117

Q: How can a foreign national that meets the requirements for the 72-hour transit visa exemption apply for it?

A: A foreign national that meets the requirements may submit his/her request to the airline company that carries him/her to Guangzhou, which shall make the application to the border control authority of Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport that shall grant a temporary entry of a passenger meeting the requirements for transit visa exemption upon verification. Besides, a foreign national that does not apply for the 72-hour transit visa exemption before entry may submit his/her application to the border control authority before completion of the border control formalities after arrival at Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport.

Q: Can a traveler apply for the 72-hour transit visa exemption when no exit air ticket is bought at the time of entry but he or she plans to purchase the air ticket for a third country leaving within 72 hours after entry?

A: According to the requirements, a foreign national applying for the 72-hour transit visa exemption must hold the air ticket for a connecting flight with confirmed date of flight and seat for a third country (region) leaving China at Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport, i.e., the exit air ticket is already in place before entry. Therefore, this facilitation measure does not apply to a foreign national that does not have a confirmed air ticket for a connecting flight leaving within 72 hours.

Q: Does this measure apply to a foreign national coming to Guangzhou from a certain country (region) with a confirmed air ticket for flying back to the same country (region) where he or she comes from within 72 hours with confirmed date of flight and seat?

A: According to the requirements, the 72-hour transit visa exemption measure is for a foreign national passing through Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport for a third country or region. Therefore this measure does not apply to a passenger whose destination country is the country where he or she comes from.

Q: Can a foreign national leave Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport for another Chinese city after getting the 72-hour transit visa exemption?

A: He or she may leave for the city in Guangdong and is not allowed to leave Guangdong province.

Q: Can a passenger enter China at Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport and then leave from the Guangzhou East Railway Station within 72 hours?

A: This measure is currently available at Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport only, which means that the travelers who enjoy the 72-hour transit visa exemption policy are only permitted to enter and leave China at Guangzhou Baiyun International Airport.

Q: What should be done in case a foreign national who has the 72-hour transit visa exemption cannot leave China within 72 hours due to some special reason after entry?

A: In case of special need to stay in the administrative precincts of Guangdong Province longer than 72 hours due to force majeure or of exceeding the permitted scope of stay, a passenger should apply for the relevant visa to the exit-entry administration department of the municipal public security authorities of Guangdong or visit <http://www.gdcjr.com> for inquiry.

Q: If I have more questions concerning the entry-exit border control formalities, how can I ask for an answer?

A: You may call the 24-hour inquiry hotline of Baiyun Entry-Exit Border Control Station: 0086-20-36066950 or 24-hour inquiry hotline of Guangzhou General Station of Immigration Inspection: 0086-20-32090088.
